1. What this software is

This is the Boran&Co CRM. CRM stands for “customer relationship management”, which is a simple way of saying: a single place where the whole team keeps track of investors, from the first conversation all the way to a signed purchase and the commission that follows.

In one sentence: if it is not in the CRM, it does not exist. Every investor, every deposit, every contract and every payment is recorded here, so nothing is lost and everyone is looking at the same picture.

You do not need any technical knowledge to use it. You open it in a web browser (like Chrome or Safari), sign in, and click through the screens. This guide is written for you as a partner, and shows the screens and tasks that apply to your account.

How to use this guide

New to it? Read the first few sections — they explain the whole idea in plain words.

Just need to do a task? Jump to “Everyday tasks, step by step”.

Stuck on something? Open the built-in Assistant in the app and type your question — it answers in plain language.

2. How the business works (the big picture)

Boran&Co connects two sides. On one side is the property developer in Baku, Azerbaijan (the “Sea Breeze” resort). On the other side are sales partners in Central Europe who find investors. Boran&Co sits in the middle and is the only party that deals with the developer directly.

An important rule about who sees whom: partners never deal with the developer, and the developer only ever sees Boran&Co. The software respects this — partners only see their own investors and their own earnings.

How the money flows

The part that matters for you:

1. Your investor pays the developer directly. You never handle the purchase money.
2. The developer pays Boran&Co a fee on the money the investor has actually paid.
3. You receive your agreed commission — your “division rate” of that fee, as set in your Agency Agreement.
4. You are paid after the developer has paid Boran&Co for that money. This is called “back-to-back”.

The golden rule (remember this one)

You earn commission on money the investor has really paid — never on an introduction, a promise, or a reservation.

And it is paid to you once Boran&Co has received the matching payment from the developer.

3. A few rules the whole system follows

- First entry wins. The first person to enter an investor “owns” that lead. The software blocks obvious duplicates.
- No skipping. A lead moves forward one stage at a time, and only when everything that stage needs is done. The screen always shows what is still missing.
- One channel. Everything to and from the developer goes through Boran&Co.
- Everything is attributed. Every action is recorded against the person who did it, with the date and time.

4. Signing in

Boran&Co has created an account for you. Open the web address they gave you, type the username and access code you were issued, and click Sign in.

The sign-in screen. Enter the username and access code Boran&Co gave you.

Keep your access code private

Your account is named to you, and everything you do is recorded against your name. If you forget your access code, ask your Boran&Co contact to set a new one for you.

5. Who does what

Two kinds of people use the system:

- Boran&Co staff (administrators and office workers) run the corridor: they deal with the developer, organise the Baku trips, handle the contracts, and pay your commission.
- You — a partner user. You find and manage your own investors, and you see your own commissions. You never see other partners, and you never see Boran&Co's internal figures.

6. The 8-stage pipeline (the heart of the system)

Every investor travels through eight stages, from first contact to a completed sale. The software calls each investor a “lead”. A lead only moves to the next stage when everything the current stage needs is finished — this requirement is called a “gate”. If something is missing, the lead's page tells you exactly what.

Who does what: stages 1 to 5 are yours — finding and preparing the investor. Stages 6 to 8 are Boran&Co's — the Baku trip, the contract, and the money (including your commission).

#	Stage	What it means
1	Market activation	The campaign or source that produced the investor.
2	Lead entry	The investor is entered into the CRM. First entry wins.
3	Qualification	Budget, type of property, purpose and timing are captured.
4	Presentation & shortlist	Properties are shown and a shortlist of units is chosen.
5	Commitment deposit	A refundable deposit is wired and the document pack is complete. The hand-over point to Boran&Co.
6	Baku visit & reservation	The investor joins a group trip to Baku, sees the site, and a unit is reserved.
7	Contract & payment	The purchase contract is signed and payments are recorded.
8	Settlement & commission	The developer pays Boran&Co, and the partner's commission is confirmed and paid.

You can see all leads laid out by stage on the Pipeline board:

Reading the board: the buyer pays the developer directly — neither Boran&Co nor the partner ever holds the purchase price. Four departures a year
Dates are published here in advance; partners plan campaigns backward from the next departure. A paid commitment deposit books the seat. For each traveller the deposit is either applied to the Baku stay and transport (non-refundable once applied) or the traveller pays personally and the deposit remains refundable per the written terms.

8. Everyday tasks, step by step

This section is a set of simple recipes. Find the task you want and follow the steps.

Add a new lead (a new investor)

1. In the left menu, click Leads.
2. Click the “+ New lead” button (top right).
3. Fill in the investor’s name, city, country, email and phone.
4. Choose the campaign or source that brought them in.
5. Click Enter lead. The investor now appears in the list at stage 2.

Tip: if you are just practising, you can type placeholder text in every box. The software only blocks a new lead if the same email, phone number, or name already exists.

Move a lead through the pipeline

Open the lead (click it in the Leads list). Work down its record from top to bottom. Each stage has a “gate” — a short list of things to complete. When they are done, the lead moves to the next stage automatically. If the button to advance is greyed out, the record tells you what is still missing.

1. Stage 3 - Qualification: record budget, unit type, purpose and timing.
2. Stage 4 - Presentation & shortlist: mark that properties were shown and choose one or more units for the shortlist.
3. Stage 5 - Commitment deposit: record the deposit as wired and complete the document pack (for example the passport and the investor information form). This hands the investor over to Boran&Co.
4. Stages 6 to 8 are handled by Boran&Co — the Baku trip, the contract, and the money. You can follow progress on the record at any time.

Record the deposit and documents

1. Open the lead and go to the Commitment deposit step (stage 5).
2. Mark the refundable deposit as wired to Boran&Co.
3. Upload the document pack the record asks for (for example the passport scan and the investor information form).
4. When the gate is complete, the investor is ready to be handed to Boran&Co for the Baku trip.

About the deposit: it is a “travel-or-return” arrangement — it pays for the investor’s trip to Baku during one of the four group departures, or is returned per the written terms.

Mark a customer payment as paid

Because you are in contact with your investor, you can record when they have paid. Doing so tells Boran&Co, who then confirm the money and release your commission.

1. Open the deal (from Leads or Deals).
2. Find the payment or installment in the schedule.
3. Click “Mark as paid”.
4. What happens next: the payment shows as “awaiting confirmation”. Boran&Co checks the money has reached them and confirms it — only then does your commission become payable.

How and when you get paid

This is the most important flow to understand, and it is deliberately in two steps so that money is only paid once it has truly arrived.

1. Your investor pays the developer. You (or the Boran&Co office) mark that payment as paid on the deal.
2. It shows as “awaiting confirmation”. Marking it paid does not release your commission yet.
3. Boran&Co confirms the money reached them. Your share now becomes payable and appears on your My commissions page.
4. Boran&Co pays your statement and attaches the bank confirmation, which you can see on your My commissions page.

Why two steps?

Because of the golden rule: you are paid only after the developer has paid Boran&Co. “Marked paid” means your investor paid; “confirmed” means the developer paid Boran&Co. You do the first; Boran&Co does the second.

9. The built-in Assistant

The software has its own help assistant. If you are ever unsure how to do something, open Assistant from the menu, type your question in plain words, and press Enter. It knows the whole process and answers in simple language.

You can ask things like “How do I add a lead?”, “Why hasn’t the commission appeared?”, “What does ‘awaiting confirmation’ mean?”, or “How do I get paid?”. There are also suggested questions you can tap to get started.

The Assistant answers questions about how to use the CRM.

Good to know

The Assistant gives guidance only — it never changes your data.

If it says it is “not switched on yet”, ask your administrator to add the AI key.

10. Frequently asked questions

I marked a payment as paid, but the commission didn't appear. Why?

That is by design. Marking a payment paid means your investor paid; it then waits for Boran&Co to confirm the developer has paid them. Once they confirm, your commission becomes payable on your My commissions page.

When is a deal shown as "Closed"?

Only when the investor has paid in full and every commission statement on it has been paid. If any money or commission is still outstanding, it shows "Completed · in settlement" or "Live". A closed, settled deal becomes a permanent, read-only record.

Can partners see each other, or see Boran&Co's figures?

No. A partner only ever sees their own investors and their own commissions. Boran&Co's internal figures are never shown to partners.

Where is the data stored? Will others see what I enter?

The data is stored inside the web browser on the device you are using. That means it is not automatically shared between devices or people, and clearing the browser's data erases it. It is ideal as a working tool. For shared data across the whole team, the records would need to live on a central server.

The Assistant says it isn't switched on. What do I do?

The AI key hasn't been added yet. Ask your administrator to switch it on.

I entered "placeholder" text everywhere and it wouldn't save a lead. Why?

The software blocks a new lead only when the same email, phone (six digits or more) or name already exists. Change one of those to something new and it will save.

How do I change my access code?

Ask your Boran&Co contact — they manage the accounts and can set a new code for you.

Do I ever deal with the developer directly?

No. Everything with the developer goes through Boran&Co. You focus on your investors; Boran&Co handles Baku, the contract and your commission.

11. Quick reference card

The eight stages

1 Market activation → 2 Lead entry → 3 Qualification → 4 Presentation & shortlist → 5 Commitment deposit → 6 Baku visit & reservation → 7 Contract & payment → 8 Settlement & commission. (Partner owns 1-5, Boran&Co owns 6-8.)

The golden rules

- ✓ You are paid after the developer has paid Boran&Co (back-to-back).
- ✓ Commission is earned on money actually paid — never on a promise.
- ✓ First entry wins; no skipping stages; everything is attributed.

Payment states

Due (not paid) → Marked paid (you marked it; waiting for Boran&Co to confirm) → Confirmed (developer paid Boran&Co; your commission now payable).

A note about data (please read)

This build stores its records in each browser's local storage. Records are therefore per-device and are erased if the browser's data is cleared. It is well suited as a working tool for one machine or a small, coordinated team.

For shared data across many people and devices, the records would need to move to a central server — your administrator can plan that.

— End of guide —
